The best way to prevent the Negro from yielding to criminal impulses is to prevent him from being idle. The best way to prevent him from being idle. The best way to prevent him from being idle is to give him a chance to work. Remove the bullenger of the state of a member of the race is regretable, of course, but when it is considered that members of the race are almost legislated out of all conditions which might appeal to the higher instincts the wonder is that no more crime is committed. Indeed, the actual ignorance of the situation is shown by the dominant race which, in utter disregard of religion, morality or justice, uses its superior power to crush the weak, trembling race which has, in spite of all this, always been a most valuation and loyalty are the weader of the world.

There is a reason why the larger per cent of Cabinet Stationary used by Kansas City's "400" is turned from the Arthur W. Harris Printing Establishment. First their workmanship in this class of service is unexcelled by any of the larger and best equipped printing establishments in this city, since they all but make a specialty of this class of work. Second, while their prices are not always the lowest, they are aiways the fairest. They have "delivered" with accuracy and despatch to over 90 per cent of the classy weddings and receptions during the past year and now when a function of class is announced its a ten-to-one shor that Harris will handle the job.

Try, Try Again.
"If at first you don't succeed, try. try again," sounds like childish philosophy, but we grown-ups will do well to apply it to our own lines. Because we cannot be a failure until we admit it ourselves. Many prominent men who have suc ceeded will tell you that they have failed in several lines of activity, and they succeeded in something that they were unconscious of any ability in.

You may long to be a famous actor or brilliant writer, but if your ability lies in painting roofs stick to it and become a connoisuer in your line of business, and you will be as great as Mrs. Geo. S. Chandler, of Chicago, the persons who are acknowledged by Traveling in the thirties of the last century, even in the more thickly settled states of the Union and with the most advanced forms of transportation at the traveler's command, was yet something to face with all the fortitude that could be drummed up. The Philadelphia Record gives a glimpse of what that traveling was like:

"On November 26, 1833, a car made the first trip over the Portage railroad. This was the most remarkable engineering undertaking of the times The railroad was 36 miles long, extending across the Allegheny mountains from Hollidayaburg to John-stown. There were ten inclined planes, five on each side of the mountains Engines at the top of each plane pulled up four cars at a time. The ascent or the east side measured 1298 feet. Then there was a tunnel of 870 feet and a descent of 1,172 feet on the western side. Passengers on canal boats entered the cars at Hollidaysburg, embarking in other boats on the westren side and thus continuing their hand journey to Pittsburgh. Later boats were built so that they could be taken apart into three or four sections and placed on a car for the trip over the mountains."

Folk who guarrel over the lateness of a train might feel better if they reminded themselves of what a boon their own belated transportation Terrell and Viola McDaniel; carving would have been to their grandpar-

CLIPPING FILE WORTH MUCH

Man in Responsible Position Goes So Far as to Consider It Invaluable in His Work.

"The man who isn't constantly studying the methods in his particular line seldom rises righ in this world" says the chief mechanic of a division of a railroad entering New York. "And above all, the man who studies must have the faculty of storing away the important facts for future reference.

"I make it a point to read all the important periodicals published con-cerning mechanics and some that relate but remotely to my line of work I don't pretend to memorize all that I read, but I have a system that I have followed for the last twenty years son, Minneapolis, Minn., and set of and I have found it to be invaluable. I maintain a private clipping file.

"My clipping file has saved me end less work and worry at various times in the last twenty years. I make a a new corporation formed by master practice, when reading periodicals, to clip and file away, carefully indexed, anything that I consider might at some time be of value to me. Then when have use for it, I know where to find

"And another thing, I make reading a business, and keep constantly at it."

Human Nature at Its Worst. The young woman who was cast off by her fiance when he discovered her drinking in the unsavory evidence at a murder trial earned what she got The morbid interest in filth that crowds such a court room is about as revolting an instinct as the world shows. It makes one wish to apologize for being a human being. A certain amount of morbid curiosity is present in the most whole-some of us. The instinct to stare at a cripple or hang about a street accident is pretty widespread. But every right-minded man or woman recognizes the unhealthy quality of the instinct and tries to choke it down. To the credit of humanity be it said that only the very weak specimens yield.-New York Tribune.

Peculiarities of Slang.

Among the slang synonyms for "hat" is "cady," which is supposed to have a Hebrew origin, and has been long in use in Whitechapel, London, as witness a popular song of 1886, in which the refrain supplies one of the few rhymes to "lady:" "Met a lady, "alsed my cady." It is doubtful whether any article of apparel has so many siang alternatives as a hat. A by no means nothing but "contrary star."
